Creative Child Care Solutions
Due to the temporary closure of many child care providers and schools, locating an opening at an out-of-home child care facility can be extremely difficult. Now is the time to reach out to your community. We anticipate that many child care workers who will be displaced from their jobs may be willing to offer child care services to those who still have to show up to work. It is also possible that you have stay-at-home parents or individuals in your local community network who would be happy to offer assistance. We understand that asking for help can be awkward and maybe even anxiety-inducing, but crises have the capacity to make a community stronger in unexpected ways. So, in addition to the above resources, below are some creative solutions for finding care:

› Post to social media or online parenting groups to see if any friends or those in your local community could care for your child(ren).
› Post to Nextdoor (https://nextdoor.com/) to see if anyone in your surrounding neighborhood could care for your child(ren).
› Coordinate with co-workers to watch each other’s child(ren).
› Try to work an opposite shift of the secondary parent (if applicable) to cover needed supervision.
› Reach out to family members and friends to see if any are available to assist.
› Ask your supervisor if they could assist in coordinating creative care solutions. If you’re a supervisor, help by being as flexible as feasibly possible to accommodate any coordination being attempted by employees in accordance with your business practices.
› See if you can get the information from your school or day care for teachers or caregivers who may be offering temporary care. These caregivers should already be CPR and First Aid certified and will probably be the best option for any children who have special needs that have to be accommodated.
› Call your local United Way to inquire about any additional local child care resources in your area (https://www.unitedway.org/find-your-united-way).
